The revenue authorities of the respective Land are responsible for inspecting whether the tax requirements set out in section 1 (2) no 2 are met. Customs authorities have the right to participate in inspections conducted by the revenue authorities of the respective Land. In order to comply with their reporting duty as set out in section 6 (1) sentence 1, in conjunction with section 6 (3) no 4, the customs authorities inspect whether there are indications that taxpayers have not fulfilled the tax obligations arising from the provision of work or services. Principles of cooperation are mutually agreed on by the highest revenue authorities of the Federation and the Länder.

(1a) The authorities responsible under the legislation of the respective Land for prosecuting and punishing administrative offences as described in this Act inspect whether

1. the duty to report the opening of an independent business operating from a fixed location (section 14 of the Trade Regulation Code) has been fulfilled or the required itinerant trader’s licence (section 15 of the Trade Regulation Code) has been obtained and
2. a craft or trade for which a licence is required is being carried out as an independent business operating from a fixed location and has been enrolled in the trade and craft register.

The responsibilities of these authorities under other legal provisions remain unaffected. The inspections can be combined with other inspections conducted by the bodies specified in this subsection; provisions governing information-sharing and cooperation remain unaffected. Administrative expenses incurred by the cooperating bodies will not be reimbursed.

Section 2a

(3) In the cases described in section 2 (1a), the obligations to produce documents set out in subsections (1) and (2) also apply vis-à-vis the authorities responsible, under the legislation of the respective Land, for prosecuting and punishing administrative offences as described in this Act.

Section 3
Powers during inspections of persons

(1) For the purposes of conducting an inspection under section 2 (1), the customs authorities and the cooperating bodies specified in section 2 (2) are authorised to enter, during the working hours of the persons employed in these places, the business premises and properties of the employer and the party contracting self-employed persons and, in the case of an inspection under section 2 (1) no 5, of the user of temporary workers and

1. gather information from them about their employment or activities and
2. check the documents carried on their person where it may be assumed that the scope, type or duration of their employment or activities can be obtained or deduced from these documents.

(2) Subsection (1) applies mutatis mutandis if a person is performing work or services in the business premises of a third party.

(3) For the purposes of conducting an inspection under section 2 (1), the customs authorities and the cooperating bodies specified in section 2 (2) are authorised to ascertain the personal data of any persons working in the business premises or properties of the employer, contracting party or third party and, in the case of an inspection under section 2 (1) no 5, of the user of temporary workers. For this purpose, they may stop the persons specified in sentence 1, ask them for their personal data (given names, surname, name at birth, date and place of birth, occupation, full address and nationality) and require them to submit for inspection the identification documents carried on their person.

(4) In the defence sector, the right to enter premises may be exercised only with the agreement of the Federal Ministry of Defence.

(5) Customs officials are authorised to stop vehicles. Drivers of vehicles must stop upon request and allow customs officials to enter and leave the vehicle. The customs administration must inform the police authorities of the Länder of any large-scale operations.

(6) Subsections (1) to (4) apply mutatis mutandis to the authorities responsible under the legislation of the respective Land for prosecuting and punishing administrative offences as described in this Act for the purposes of conducting inspections under section 2 (1a), provided that there are indications of undeclared work as defined in section 1 (2) nos 4 and 5.

Section 4

Powers during inspections of business documents

(1) For the purposes of conducting an inspection under section 2 (1), the customs authorities and the cooperating bodies specified in section 2 (2) are authorised to enter, during business hours, the business premises and properties of the employer and the party contracting work or services and, in the case of an inspection under section 2 (1) no 5, the user of temporary workers and check payroll and registration documents, accounts and other business documents from which information about the scope, type or duration of employment can be obtained or deduced.

(1a) For the purposes of conducting an inspection under section 2 (1a), the authorities responsible under the legislation of the respective Land for prosecuting and punishing administrative offences as described in this Act are authorised to enter, during the working hours of the persons employed in these places, the business premises and properties of the self-employed person, the employer and the party contracting self-employed persons and check documents where it may be assumed that the scope, type or duration of the operation of a business, an itinerant trade, a craft or trade for which a licence is required, or of employment can be obtained or deduced from these documents, provided that there are indications of undeclared work as defined in section 1 (2) nos 4 and 5.

(2) For the purposes of conducting an inspection under section 2 (1), the customs authorities are authorised to check documents indicating the remuneration provided for work or services commissioned by individuals, legal persons or associations. In the context of conducting an inspection under section 2 (1) no 5, sentence 1 applies mutatis mutandis to documents indicating the remuneration provided for temporary work.

(3) For the purposes of conducting an inspection under section 2 (1), the customs authorities are authorised to check, at the premises of contracting parties that are not traders as defined in section 2 of the VAT Act of 1999, invoices, payment vouchers or other substantiating documents about supplies of work (including materials) and other services in connection with real estate.

Duty to submit to and cooperate with inspections

(1) Employers, workers, contracting parties and third parties present during an inspection under section 2 (1) and (1a) as well as users of temporary workers present during an inspection under section 2 (1) no 5 must submit to and cooperate with the inspection; in particular, they must provide information relevant to the inspection and present the documents specified in sections 3 and 4. In cases covered by section 3 (1), (2) and (6) as well as section 4 (1), (1a) and (2), they must also submit to the entering of their properties and business premises. A person obliged to furnish information may refuse to do so to avoid exposing him-/herself or a person related to him/her (as defined in section 383 (1) nos 1 to 3 of the Code of Civil Procedure) to the risk of prosecution for a criminal or administrative offence. Foreign nationals must, upon request, present to the customs authorities their passport, travel document issued in lieu of a passport or document issued in lieu of an identity card as well as their residence permit, proof of tolerated person status or permission to stay and, if there are indications of a violation of provisions relating to foreign nationals, surrender these to be handed over to the competent authority responsible for foreign nationals. If the documents are retained, the foreign national must be given a receipt specifying the documents that have been retained and the authority responsible for foreign nationals to which they are being handed over. The foreign national must then present him-/herself to the authority responsible for foreign nationals without delay. This must be explained on the receipt. If the authority responsible for foreign nationals returns the documents that have been retained, or if other documents are issued in lieu, the authority responsible for foreign nationals must retain the receipt.
(2) In cases covered by section 4 (3), contracting parties that are not traders as defined in section 2 of the VAT Act of 1999 must submit to and cooperate with inspections under section 2 (1); in particular, they must provide information relevant to the inspection and present the documents specified in section 4 (3). Subsection (1) sentence 3 applies mutatis mutandis.

(3) In the case of an inspection under section 2 (1) no 5, the employer and the contracting party as well as the user of temporary work must, upon request, extract data stored in data processing equipment and transmit them to the customs authorities either on data storage devices that can be processed by automated means or in the form of lists. If data extraction would involve a disproportionate amount of time and effort and there are no overriding legitimate interests of the person concerned, the employer and the contracting party and, in the case of an inspection under section 2 (1) no 5, the user of temporary work may provide either data storage devices that can be processed by automated means or lists containing the data required without previously having extracted the relevant data. In this case, the customs authorities must separate the data and delete any data that is not covered by sentence 1. If the transmitted data are not needed for the purpose of investigating criminal or administrative offences, investigating tax-relevant circumstances or setting social security contributions or benefits, the data storage devices or lists must, upon the request of the employer or contracting party, be returned or the data deleted without delay following the conclusion of an inspection under section 2 (1).

Information-sharing and cooperation among authorities

(1) The customs authorities and the cooperating bodies specified in section 2 (2) have a duty to share with each other any information necessary for inspections, including personal data and the results of inspections, to the extent that the authorities and bodies need these to perform their tasks. The customs authorities on the one hand and the law enforcement authorities and police authorities on the other hand must share with each other any information necessary for the prevention and prosecution of criminal and administrative offences related to one of the matters for inspection specified in section 2 (1). Personal data may be transmitted to law enforcement authorities and police authorities only if there are actual indications that the data are necessary for the prevention and prosecution of criminal or administrative offences related to one of the matters for inspection specified in section 2 (1).

(2) In order to fulfil their tasks as set out in section 2 (1) and for the purpose of prosecuting criminal and administrative offences, the customs authorities may electronically retrieve the Federal Employment Agency’s data records on EU work permits and authorisations to take up employment issued as well as on foreign nationals employed under works and services contract quotas; law enforcement authorities may retrieve such data records by automated means only to the extent that this is necessary for the prosecution of criminal and administrative offences. Section 79 (2) to (4) of Book X of the Social Code applies mutatis mutandis.

(3) The customs authorities must inform the relevant authorities if, in fulfilling their responsibilities as set out in this Act, they find any indications of violations of

1. this Act,
2. the Temporary Employment Act,
3. provisions of Books IV and VII of the Social Code on the payment of contributions,
4. tax laws,
5. the Residence Act,
6. The duty to cooperate as set out in section 60 (1), sentence 1, nos 1 and 2 of Book I of the Social Code or the reporting obligation as set out in section 8a of the Asylum Seekers Benefit Act,

7. the Trade and Crafts Code or the Trade Regulation Code,

7a. the Road Haulage Act,

7b. the Passenger Transport Act,

8. other criminal laws,

9. the Posted Workers Act or

10. the Minimum Wage Act.

Documents seized under section 5 (1), sentence 4, must be transmitted to the authority responsible for foreign nationals without delay.

(4) If there are indications that a document seized under section 5 (1), sentence 4, is forged or has been tampered with, it must be transmitted to the police authority responsible.

Section 6a Transmission of personal data to member states of the European Union

(1) The customs authorities may transmit personal data related to one of the matters for inspection specified in section 2 (1) to an authority of a European Union member state competent for the prevention and prosecution of crimes. In this context, the transmission of personal data without a request is permissible only if, in the case in question, there is a risk of the commission of a crime as defined in Article 2(2) of Council Framework Decision 2002/584/JHA of 13 June 2002 on the European arrest warrant and the surrender procedures between Member States (OJ L 190, 18/07/2002, p. 1), most recently amended by Framework Decision 2009/299/JHA (OJ L 81, 27/02/2009, p. 24), and there are specific indications that the transmission of this personal data could contribute to preventing such a crime.

(2) The transmission of personal data under subsection (1) is permissible only if the request contains at least the following details:

1. name and address of the requesting authority,

2. designation of the crime that is to be prevented with the help of the requested data,

3. description of the case on which the request is based,

4. purpose for which the data are requested,

5. connection between the purpose for which the information or intelligence is requested and the person who is the subject of the information,

6. details about the identity of the person concerned, if the request relates to a known person and

7. reasons for believing the relevant information and intelligence are available in Germany.

(3) Data must not be transmitted under subsection (1) if

1. doing so would impair core security interests of the Federation or the Länder,

2. the transmission of the data would be disproportionate or the data are not required for the purposes for which they are to be transmitted,
3. the data to be transmitted are not held by the requested authority and can only be obtained by taking coercive measures or
4. doing so would contravene special federal utilisation provisions; the duty to observe statutory secrecy obligations and professional or special official secrets that are not based on legal provisions remains unaffected.

(4) Transmission is not required if
1. the maximum penalty under German law for the act that is to be prevented is one year’s imprisonment or less,
2. the transmitted data are to be used as evidence before a judicial authority,
3. the data to be transmitted are not held by the requested authority but could be obtained without taking coercive measures or
4. transmission would present a risk to the success of ongoing investigations or to a person’s body, life or freedom.

(5) Without the consent of the transmitting state, personal data transmitted to the customs authorities under Council Framework Decision 2006/960/JHA of 18 December 2006 on simplifying the exchange of information and intelligence between law enforcement authorities of the Member States of the European Union (OJ L 386 of 29/12/2006, p. 89, OJ L 75 of 15/3/2007, p. 26) may be used only for the purposes for which they were transmitted or to avert a present and substantial threat to public security. The data may be used for other purposes or as evidence in judicial proceedings only if the transmitting state has given its consent. The conditions set by the transmitting state for the use of the data must be observed.

(6) For the purposes of monitoring data protection, the customs authorities must provide information to the transmitting state upon request about how the transmitted data were used.

(7) Subsections (1) to (6) also apply to the transmission of personal data to authorities of a Schengen associated state that are responsible for the prevention and prosecution of crimes as described in section 91 (3) of the International Assistance in Criminal Matters Act.

Section 7
Right to information in cases of anonymous advertising
If advertising is published without a name and address under a box number, and if there are indications of undeclared work under section 1, the person who published the box number advertisement must inform the customs authorities of the name and address of the client of the advertisement free of charge.
